Not illustrated. 1914 Excerpt: .mainly little bluestem, sand dropseed, black grama, and plains bristlegrass. The present vegetation in most areas is mainly sand dropseed, black grama, and sand sagebrush. If the rangeland is overgrazed, the proportion of preferred forage plants decreases and the proportion of less preferred forage plants increases. Therefore, livestock grazing should be managed so that the desired balance of preferred species is maintained in the plant community. Shinnery oak readily invades the Faskin soil. In areas where shinnery oak is dominant, livestock should be removed when the shinnery oak is in late bud or early leaf stage because of its toxicity during this period. The average annual production of air-dry vegetation on this soil ranges from 3,000 pounds per acre in favorable years to 1,500 pounds in unfavorable years. Areas of this unit that are heavily infested with undesirable plants can be improved by chemical or mechanical...
