Excerpt from An Introductory Address, Delivered at the Opening of the Annual Course of Lectures of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, in the City of New York, October 19th, 1857 Mr. President and Gentlemen: On an occasion like the present, I might be expected to commend to your favorable regard that branch of Science with whose supervision and administration, in this Institution, I am honored. If this branch of Education were new, or if the general sentiment of the profession and of mankind had riot been decidedly expressed in its favor, I should feel it incumbent upon me to attempt a plea in its defense. But, since it is neither novel nor destitute of public favor, I have deemed it not inappropriate to ask your attention to the general philosophy of the processes of Education - a topic of vital interest to the well-being of society, and which has elicited the widest discussion, not only with the view of improving details, but of placing the whole system upon a rational foundation, in accordance with the spirit...
