Moreover the woman for whom the defendants became sureties got married, and during her coverture the law distinctly says her liability ceased. The husband takes possession of the property of which his wife may be the administratrix, and her responsibility is at an end until the termination of the coverture. Therefore if the principal debtor were not liable, how could her sureties be held to be? The waste occurred after Mrs. Quilty s marriage with Corbet. They became sureties distinctly for one person, and could not be held liable for waste committed by another whose existence they probably were at that time unaware of. The plaintiff also stated that he was the receiver of the estate, but a receiver could not enter into legal proceedings...
