About this time white spots, similar to the first one, appear in the heartwood at a point from 3 to 5 feet on either side of the first hole--that is, the mycelium of the fungus has grown longitudinally and set up two new centers of destruction. A vigorous growth of the hyphae takes place at these centers, and this growth invades the wood in all directions and brings about the characteristic changes very rapidly. In due time other centers arise farther up and down the trunk. The older holes continue to increase in size until they attain their greatest proportions, reaching the lateral limit very soon, as they are rarely more than 2 to 3 inches wide. The cavities extend up and down and frequently unite. The absorption of the cellulose goes on until none is left. The walls of the cavities...
