Temperature of the room--if the room was warm, work was. much slower than usual; if too cold the same result was noticeable. 3. Interruption of any kind barred progress. This was especially true with the children. Once their minds were off their work, it was, hard for them to concentrate themselves upon it again for some time. 4. Mind-wandering --thinking of outside things--caused decrease in rapidity of action. 5. If subjects were in a hurry, for any reason, the work was slower than usual. 6. Weariness from school work made a great difference in the records. 7. If an unusually strong effort was put forth to do the work quickly, without fail undesired results would follow. Brief Summary Of Results 1. The greater gains in the process of learning to do something are at the first of the practice. 2. Periods of morning work are more effective than the afternoon periods. 3. Children work much slower to begin with than do adults, but the gains made by them are greater. The gains of the adults, however, are more even and uniform than those of the children. 4. Short and frequent periods of practice are more valuable than long extended ones. Editor's Comment.--The test sheet and key used in the above experiments...
